NEARING A CRISIS.

Kiamil Pasha Driven From the Office of Grand Vizier.

HE WAS ORDERED TO ALEPPO

But Was Unfit to Travel—Appointment of the Present Cabinet Causes Consternation Everywhere—Salisbury Proposes to the Powers the Dismemberment of Turkey—Italy In Perfect Accord.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Constantinople correspondent of The Times says that Kiamil Pasha was driven from the office of the grand vizier by an offensively expressed tirade, which was intended to disguise the fact that he had refused to retain the office, and to cloak the sultan's insincerity as to his intentions regarding the reforms which have been demanded by the powers in Armenia, and also to hide his refusal to proclaim the reforms by an imperial edict. Kiamil was ordered to Aleppo forthwith, which is a virtual exile, but he was taken suddenly with a high fever and bronchitis, and six physicians declared he was unfit to travel. The sultan thereupon gave permission for the delay of his departure.

"It would be as difficult," says The Times special, "to conceive the condition of mind which brought the sultan to appoint such a deplorable cabinet, as to describe the consternation it has caused everywhere. The grand vizier is, perhaps, the least objectionable. His intentions are honest, but his capabilities are small. Tewfik Pasha is a nonentity. Abdur Rahman and Memdukh are a couple of fanatics. Munir's aptitude for unclean work has raised him high in the esteem of the sultan and places him facile princeps at the home of the political spies."

The Constantinople correspondent of The Daily News, writing of the intervention of the French ambassador in the matter of the Diarbikir riot, says: "Hearing that the French subjects in Diarbikir were in danger, M. Cambot, French ambassador, sent to the porte in the middle of the night to say that if any French citizen was killed he would insist upon having the governor's head. It is alleged that Kiamil Pasha's dismissal from the office of grand vizier was due to his having demanded certain administrative powers formerly pertaining to the grand vizier, but long in abeyance."

A dispatch to The Chronicle from Rome says that Corriere del Mattino of Naples has advices to the effect that the Marquis of Salisbury has confidentially proposed to the powers the dismemberment of Turkey. A Berlin dispatch to The Chronicle says that the Vossische Zeitung has news from Bucharezo that the massacres have occurred in the village of Erzeroum and that many villages have been burned and pillaged and enormous numbers killed.

A dispatch to The Times from Rome, referring to the gravity of Turkish affairs, says Italy is in perfect accord with England and that the Italian fleet is ready to co-operate with the English fleet wherever the interest of European peace may need it.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

Strength of the Battery the Foundation of the Charge.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Nov. 9.—Henry Sonnetag of Cleveland, deputy supreme chief ranger of the Order of Foresters, was arrested here for alleged assault and battery in connection with the initiation of two candidates, George Ayres, a grocer, and Millard Caldwell, a druggist. They stood the ordeal until they were led blindfolded and barefooted through a tank of water charged with electricity. Caldwell fought his way out of the lodgeroom, but Ayres was held to the work, and next morning he could not get out of bed. Sonnetag gave bonds for his appearance in court, and Ayres threatens an action for damages.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

It Opened Up a Gushing Stream Near Lawrenceburg.

LAWRENCEBURG, Ind., Nov. 9.—A remarkable result of the earthquake last week is to be seen some distance from the mouth of Tanner's creek. Before the shock the creek was dry and showed a bottom of solid rock. The earthquake cracked the rock open, and there began flowing from the crack a strong stream of water that has filled the creek, though there has not been a drop of rain.

WARM MEETING.

Society of Naval Architects Discuss Nicaraguan Canal Matters.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers had a warm discussion over the Nicaragua canal at yesterday's session of its convention. The question before the body was the proposition of presenting a memorial to congress from the society asking favorable action on the Nicaraguan canal project under the auspices of an American company, and the proposition to present the memorial was defeated by a vote of 27 to 15. Admiral Richard W. Meade, United States navy, was chairman of the committee which has the matter in charge and he made the following report:

In the judgment of this committee it would be proper to direct the president of this society to address such a memorial to the congress of the United States in the name of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers when the report of the Nicaragua commission, appointed by the president of the United States, is made public, provided that said report is favorable to the canal.

The report was accompanied by the draft of a memorial which follows:

To the Honorable, the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress Assembled:

Your petitioner, the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, incorporated under the laws of the state of New York, in convention assembled, do hereby present for the consideration of your honorable body the question of aiding by suitable legislation befitting the magnitude of the great project of any properly organized American corporation engaged, or to be engaged in the task of constructing a ship canal through the territory of the republic of Nicaragua.

It is useless for the society to remind your honorable body of the transcendent importance to this country of a successful prosecution of such a work.

Apart from its commercial benefit to the entire civilized world, it seems to us to promise to the people of the United States the means of cementing in even closer union than now exists the seaboard states of the Atlantic and Pacific, of rendering one and indivisible the ties that bind the extreme east to the extreme west, and of justifying one of the mottos of this glorious Union, "Esto Perpetua."

Furthermore it seems to promise to our people engaged in ocean commerce the prospect of competing as of old in American built ships on more even terms than hitherto for the great trade of China, made possible by the recent struggle between that country and Japan; and it further promises to insure closer ties of friendship between ourselves and the Central and South American countries, giving to this country that predominance in the affairs of the American continent which by right we should have, and which has been jealously contested hitherto by certain European powers.

For these and other reasons which will doubtless occur to your honorable body, we ask most respectfully that the Nicaragua Canal company, under control of citizens of these United States, may receive at your hands such consideration, sympathy and substantial aid and encouragement as you may deem wise and just.

IT WILL BE A TIE.

That Is What Is Claimed of the Kentucky Legislature.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 9.—The Evening Post says the general assembly only will be a tie when it meets and the election of a successor to Senator Blackburn is a matter of conjecture, the Democrats having 68 votes and 1 Democratic-Populist vote, making a total of 69.

The Republicans will have 68 and 1 Republican-alliance vote, making a total of 69. The Republicans claim the lieutenant governor, Worthington, will have the decisive vote, thus assuring them the senatorship. This is an error, however, as the lieutenant governor, as presiding officer of the senate, can not vote in joint ballot.

Complexion of United States Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The Republicans made a gain of five United States senators, two from Utah, one each from Ohio, Kentucky and Maryland, while the Democrats loose three, one each from Ohio, Kentucky and Maryland. The two from Utah take their seats at once, but the others not until March 4, 1897. Therefore the senate at present stands 44 Republicans, 39 Democrats, 6 Populists, 1 (vacant) Delaware.

New Process of Paving Roads.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—United States Consul Monaghan at Chemnitz, in a report to the state department, describes a new process of paving roads with stone blocks faced only on one side, embedded in Portland cement and gravel so as to afford perfectly square blocks, which are made in moulds.

RIP VAN WINKLE.

Joe Jefferson Presented With a Silver Loving Cup.

"HERE'S TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH."

More Than a Thousand Members of the Dramatic Profession Send Greeting to the Head and Front of the American Stage—Audience Treated to Reminiscences—Speech of the Veteran Comedian.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Nearly all of the prominent actors and theatrical managers in New York were included in the company of 300 which assembled at the Garden theater yesterday afternoon to present to Joseph Jefferson a massive silver loving cup, the gift of more than 1,000 members of the dramatic profession.

Frank Mayo, who made the presentation address, said:

We are here today to tender in simple, honest words an expression of that love and affection in which you are held by your comrades of our profession. First as a man, whom all, without regard to craft, honor and respect; then as our recognized and accepted representative actor, the head and front of the American stage, the peer of any actor in the land. We greet you today with all our love with all our hearts. But as no artist is greater than his art, so in honoring you we do honor to ourselves and to that art of which you are so proud, and of which we are so proud you are of it.

My dear brother in art, in their name I greet you once more; in their name I present this cup; in their name I say, Here's to your good health, to your family's good health, and may you all live long and prosper.

As Mr. Mayo concluded he walked toward the pedestal on which the plaster representation of the cup was placed, and drawing the silk draperies aside presented the veteran comedian with the gift of his brother and sister actors.

Frank Mordaunt called for three cheers for Mr. Jefferson, which was responded to with a will, the audience arising en masse, waving handkerchiefs and cheering. Mr. Jefferson did not attempt a set speech, but for half an hour dealt in bright reminiscences of the stage, and told stories of Booth and Forrest and his own early days, which pleased his audience immensely. In conclusion he said:

There are here today three persons who have known each other for a long time, and who were formerly associated with Laura Keene's company during the run of "American Cousins." There was a company of 30 equipped actors, of whom there are but three alive—Mr. Stoddard, Mr. Charles Coulcock and myself. Possibly it is the first time in 30 years that we all three have been assembled under the same roof or in the same theater together. I might say with the witch in Macbeth, "When shall we three meet again," but I believe as Tennyson says, "Life is but a play;" it matters not that it shall be long, but that it shall be well acted, and to be sure that we get a good end.

An Acrimonious Debate.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—The meeting of the Methodist Church Extension society was enlivened by an acrimonious debate. This was aroused by the discussion of the plan to set aside from the $80,000 to be asked from the conference $50,000 for a contingent fund, $15,000 for an emergency fund and $24,000 for office expenses.

Captain and Crew Refuse Information as to the Disaster.

SAULT STE MARIE, Nov. 9.—The captain and crew of the wrecked boat Missoula refuse to tell anything of the story of the disaster, the members of the crew acting under the orders of the officers in remaining silent. It has been learned that the shaft of the vessel broke when she was about 300 miles above White Fish, and that she drifted before the gale to a point 15 miles above Caribou island, where the crew took to the boats and made for the shore. They reached Gargantua on Sunday and from there came to this place. The cargo of the Missoula was 75,000 bushels of grain, valued at $50,000. The boat was insured for $40,000.

As Much Swayed by Political Excitement as White Men.

VINA, I. T., Nov. 9.—A message from Tahlequah states that much excitement and intense feeling between political factions in the Cherokee nation are prevailing and bloodshed will result unless compromised. The conditions are similar to those of eight years ago, when many men were killed. ## REVIEW OF TRADE

State of the Different Markets During the Week.

AN ADVANCE IN COKE EXPECTED

Pig Iron and Billets Lower Because of Limited Demand For Rails at Combination Prices—Woolen Mills Closing to Await Orders—Cotton Goods Firmly Held—Wheat Declined.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: It has been a broken week, and just before and after elections in the most important states operations rarely have much significance. Business may be largely affected in time, but as yet there is scarcely any indication what the effect will be. The controling power at present is the effort to readjust the prices after the remarkable rise of last summer in import materials and products, with the struggle of great combinations to prevent decline.

An advance in the price of coke to $2 is expected. The price of Bessemer pig is lower, $11.75 at Pittsburg, and billets are lower because there is scarcely any demand for rails at the combination price; structural contracts are not low, and the demand for wire and wire nails has been curtailed by the nail trust by an advance of 170 per cent in four months. Large western and eastern orders for cars help the demand for bar, but finished products are quite generally sold below quotations, which are now lower than they were two months ago.

Many woolen mills are also closing to wait for orders, though the demand is fairly satisfactory for some dress goods and worsteds, and the Washington mills open Clay worsteds at 10 cents advance. But prices of these and most qualities of woolens are still uncertain, for manufacturers do not know yet what they have to meet.

Cotton mills do well, as the halt and hesitation in cotton does not stop buying of goods, and many believe goods safe at current prices, even if cotton is not. For raw cotton is held at 8 31 cents in spite of a highly respectable estimate of only 6,485,000 bales for the year.

Wheat falls back with great reluctance from its summer rise of 20 cents, but has declined 1¼ cents for the week, western receipts being 8,019,910 bushels against 3,845,032 for the same week last year. The reports of winter wheat from some states are also better.

Corn comes forward largely, receipts being more than double last year's and nearly 1,000,000 bushels went abroad. The rapid marketing of supplies of wheat from Russia and Argentina, and the larger exports of corn from this country, both tend to lessen the future demand for American wheat.

Failures for the week have been 280 in the United States against 261 last year, and 49 in Canada against 42 last year.

ELECTION OF DR. LUEGER.

His Rejection by the Emperor Causes Strong Session of Reichstrath.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Vienna correspondent of The Chronicle records a stormy sitting of the Reichstrath on the rejection by the emperor of the election of Dr. Lueger by the anti-Semites as burgomaster of Vienna. The premier's explanation gave rise to unprecedented scenes. Lueger and Prince Lichtenstein made violent and abusive speeches against the government. The public gallery was crowded with anti-Semites, who joined in the noisy demonstrations which were made, and were ejected for that reason. The house finally approved the rejection of Dr. Lueger's election by a majority of 54.

THE TALLYWAGS ENTERTAIN AT THE NEW KERR HOUSE FRIDAY NIGHT

In Honor of the Fourth Anniversary of the Organization of Their Club—It Was a Swell Event—The Spread Was Most Elaborate.

Those royal entertainers, the Tally Wags, celebrated the fourth anniversary of the organization of their club with customary reception and banquet, Friday night.

The entertainments of the Tally Wags are ever looked forward to with the most eager expectations for it has become a well-established fact that their annual assembly is, usually, the swell event of the year among the young society people of the city.

Under such conditions the fond anticipations of those who had been honored with invitations to the present affair can better be imagined than described and it is safe to say that the most flighty hopes were fully realized.

About 8 o'clock carriages in charge of members of a committee appointed for that purpose called for the guests who were driven to the Kerr House and then met and received by the committee on reception.

From that time on until the doors of the banquet hall were thrown open, the parlors, decorated with cut roses, carnations and chrysanthemums and with potted plants of beautiful foliage and bloom, were thronged with the youth and beauty of the city, and as it was distinctly a dress affair, where artistic gowns, in all the dainty tints and colorings, only served to make the whiter the rounded throats and gleaming shoulders, the effect was none the less striking that it was beautiful.

Though to the majority it seemed but a small division of the flight of time, yet it must have been several hours after the arrival of the early guests before it was announced that the evening's spread awaited the pleasure of the assembled guests.

Two long tables extended up and down the hall, which had been elaborately decorated with flowering as well as foliage plants, while at each plate lay a bunch of roses for the lady guest and a rosebud for the gentleman, and at all, a menu, the most elaborate ever used in the city, being engraved and embossed, the embossing displaying in bronze the color of the club, bright red.

Here, while the sweet notes of a harp rang out in melodies and whiled away the hour, the courses of a most rare banquet were served and midnight was upon the Wags and their friends before Toastmaster Crow arose and, in a neat and clever speech, introduced Mr. Foster, to whom, he said, he gave the honor of speaking words of welcome to their guests.

Mr. Foster is always clever and willing, attaining, without an apparent effort, that for which others often strive, and in his welcome address, Friday night, he was at his best, his remarks well meriting the hearty bursts of applause which frequently interrupted his effort.

To the toast, "The Club," Art Williams was asked to respond and the manner in which he handled the subject was a wide and welcome departure from that in which the same is usually handled. In his remarks he showed himself to be worthy, in all ways, the dependance which is ever placed upon him to say something interesting and witty.

Mr. Rowe, at the request of the toastmaster, next told of the pleasure the occasion had brought to him, after which Mr. Crow made a palpable hit in his introduction of Mr. Rapp to respond to the toast, "The Ladies."

Mr. Rapp spoke feelingly of the sacrifices which he had made to secure the honor of toasting the ladies, and to judge by the applause and laughter which his words produced his sacrifices were not in vain.

Following Mr Rapp, Mr Perry was called upon to explain why it was that he, by predictions of democratic success, had caused his brother clubmen to squander their sustenance, after which Mr. Dombaugh toasted "The Absent Members," both gentlemen acquitting themselves nobly.

An adjournment to the parlors while the banquet hall was cleared was then had, after which dancing was indulged in 'till a late hour this morning.

The following were the guests of the evening: Mr. and Mrs W. J. Wiant, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McNeal, Mr and Mrs. Carl K. Collier, Kenton, Mr and Mrs. T. G. Rowe, Bucyrus, Mrs F. S. Keiler, Misses Hume, Abendroth, Dix, Fairfield, Quigley, Wilson, Smiley, Dee, Walters, Doty, Masdon, Forward, Cummin, Leonard, Hessong, Potter, Crow, Douglas, Schultz, Kennedy, Cunningham, Gertrude Potter, Alice Hane, Nettie Quigley.

Bernice Christian, Lida Cunningham, Anna Cheney, Mame Christian, Jessie Fisher, Nellie Fisher, Clara Louise Johnston, Hortense Cunningham, Fanny DeWolfe, Columbus, Adelaide Hare, Upper Sandusky, Dolly Culbertson Mechanicsburg, Frances Hiss Delaware, Claudice Campbell LaRue, Bessie Marvin, Columbus, and Messrs S. Sherrer Burt McClain, G. H. Uhler, Faust Mackey, Chas Hessong, T. G. Seymour, Columbus, Geo Spratt, Columbus, A. B. Collier, Kenton, E. L. Stocks Findlay, and G. Golding, Columbus.

Those entertaining were: T. R. Allen, H. L. Crow, D. C. Dee, J. F. Dombaugh, C. H. Elliott, G. H. Foster, H. D. Hord, J. C. Hume, F. S. Keiter, O. E. Kennedy, L. C. Langley, E. C. Perry, O. S. ### THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER.

John Elserose, assistant steam roller engineer, went out to the brewery the other day. In walking around John put one of his fingers on a hot pipe. Now it happened that it burned John's finger pretty badly, and since that he has not been at the brewery. The funny part of it is that it was in the ice plant, where John thought that every thing would be as cold as the ice itself.

George M Dedrick thinks of starting a hat store. George won so many hats on the election that he doesn't know what to do with them unless he starts a retail store.

A hen that would lay two eggs a day at present would be quite a valuable piece of property. From the price of eggs it would seem that most of the hens were on a strike, and had no thoughts of compromising.

There is no doubt but what there will be a bicycle club here next season. The riders of the city are desirous of forming an organization during the winter so that the club may be ready for business when the season opens.

It is expected to give the initial performance at the new opera house on Washington's birthday, but such weather as this is not favorable for the opening on that day. It is thought, however, that the house will be completed by that date.

There is a scarcity of empty houses in the city at present. A gentleman in looking for a house the other day was unable to find anything within a reasonable distance to the main portion of the city. It speaks well for the city as in some of the neighboring towns it is hard to get tenants.

Stole a Trunk.

A thief deliberately walked off with a trunk at the C. H. V. and P. Friday evening. The trunk was a through piece of baggage and had been transferred from the C. and I. Between 6 and 7 o'clock it was setting on the platform and was taken away from there. The trunk was missed and afterwards found broken open near Katz's beer house.

The trunk contained a gentleman's wardrobe. When found it still contained quite an amount of clothing but what was taken can not be told until its owner is heard from. Tramps are supposed to have stolen the property.

Mr. A. V. Snyder, supt. Poor Farm Winnesheik, Co., Ia., says: "Last winter Mr. Robert Leach used two boxes of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and cured a large running sore on his leg. Had been under care of physician for months without obtaining relief. Sure cure for piles. Flocken's Drug Store.

MR. AND MRS THOMPSON

Entertained at a Family Gathering at Turney Home.

At the home of Mrs C. Turney, of east Center street, Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs Matt Thompson entertained some sixty relatives on both sides of the family.

Invitations had been extended to all the relatives in the city, some seventy-eight in number, but twenty were kept away through various causes, the sixty being made up by the presence here of Mr and Mrs John Thompson, of Upper Sandusky.

Light refreshments were served and a most enjoyable family reunion had which will long be held in happy memory by those in attendance.

TOWN TOPICS

The "Imperial," by which the latest club is known, is a departure, in name, from Tally Wags, Tic Ties and Kitchi Gammas.

Five candidates for teachers certificates were examined in the agricultural room at the court house today by the county examiners.

Milton Morral, of Morral, commissioner-elect of this county, and Wm A. Conaway, of Caledonia, who escaped political honors by so small a margin, were in the city today, shaking hands with friends.

Unless the matter is in some way settled, the early part of the week there will be filed in the court of common pleas the petition in a case which will shake things up generally and furnish food for gossip for weeks to come.

The Tie Tac club, for the purpose of practice and amusement as well, has inaugurated a series of mock trials and the pleas of the counsel on the opposing sides of the case can be heard on the streets at almost any hour of the night.

The marriage of Miss Anna Sullivan and Mr. James Nebergall will occur at St. Mary's church in the very near future. Both Miss Sullivan and Mr Nebergall are well and favorably known here and their many friends will be pleased to know of their approaching nuptials.

A wonderful change has been made in the appearance of the interior of the county court house and they have all of them been lightened up wonderfully. During the week just closing after much hard labor the windows have been washed sufficient to allow daylight to penetrate the panes.

It is now quite probable that the annual chrysanthemum social and sale of the Presbyterian church will be held at the church parlors and the evening of Thursday, Nov. 21. The music will be furnished by the Marion Grand orchestra and a delightful social event as well as one of much profit to the church may be anticipated.

The present rain has been such a blessing to humanity, generally, that it won't do to bemoan the fact that it delays the completion of Prospect street, the laying of asphalt on which has progressed as far as the A. Leffler home. Another week of fair weather and the street will be completed and ready for acceptance by the city council.

The name, Tally Wag, is a good one in that it tells nothing but should the boys want something expressive would the name "Pride" be expressive? Every organization has been attended with stormy weather and it is an open question if it would not be a good scheme for the agricultural society to deal with to fix it with the Wags to give a banquet.

Miss Maggie Hills of Delaware, who sings at the recital at the residence of Mr and Mrs Fred Haberman, of Gospel Hill, Thursday evening, is one of the belles of the "Classic City," who after twelve years of hard study comes before the public in all ways fitted to please, being not only a sweet singer of merit but also a handsome and accomplished lady whom it is a pleasure to know.

Days like the present make us realize how much better off we are in the matter of streets than we were a year ago. When last winter we had but a little over a mile of paved streets now four of our principal thoroughfares are paved and where there was once mud and water there is now solid footing. Should the coming winter not be an open one and we should have several weeks of sleighing, how our paved streets will be appreciated.

Marion is a town pre-eminent for secret orders. We already have hall after hall, yet as many as two and sometimes three orders hold meetings in the same hall. That isn't the worst of it. Although new halls are being built continually, yet new orders are springing up in still greater numbers and it is an open question now where a new order can secure quarters. The Darmody and Evans blocks may help the matter out a little, but it will be some time before those buildings are ready for occupancy.

A group of gentlemen in at Wiant's, one evening this week, were commenting on how even great artists make mistakes. The matter was brought up by the front page cartoon of Judge of Nov. 9, by the artist, Victor. The cartoon shows "John Bull" spiking a large muzzle loader, representing the Monroe doctrine, while the guard Grover Cleveland, sleeps at his post. It would have been all right if the artist had stopped there, but he didn't. He went further and drew two shells for a breech loading gun in the picture.

Stomach and bowel complaints are best relieved by the timely use of DeWitt's Colic and Cholera Cure. Insist on having this preparation. Don't take any other. Flocken's Drug Store.

Scenery at the Rangeley Lakes.

The wildest scenery of the Rangeley Lakes is not to be by that seen at Lake Moosehead, Maine. Particularly where the waters are seen above the original shore, lone ghost-like trees standing as in awful solitude, it appears very grand. It is, in fact, so, for with the exception of an occasional camp, the woods which crowd to the very brink of the water are primeval. There are few wilder than the forests of the Adirondacks for there are very few places in the latter where there are not good trails for woodsmen and hunters, while around the Rangeleys, and especially Moosehead, there are miles upon miles of woods which can be penetrated only by using the ax. Not even a woodman's trail crosses them, and their interior is as unknown to the land-seas to the visitors. They have not changed in the slightest degree since the days when the Indians were in possession, and white men were unknown.

Many of the mountains to be seen from Moosehead are also quite picturesque. The portions in which trails of any kind have been made are very insignificant as compared with the rest. On some days the highest peaks of the White mountains are visible from the Rangeleys, and these add to the grandeur of the scene. On cloudy days, when the wind is blowing, the waters of the lakes look very much like those of the sea, and a very pronounced surf, all flecked with foam, beats upon the shore. On such days even the veriest scout do not go out in rowboats, and the somber coloring of woods and water makes the scene weird as well as savage.—New York Sun.

Steam Boilers.

Some of the chief causes for the scaling of boilers and all that comes from such deficiencies—end plates too thick or too rigidly stayed, impure feed water, presence of oil in the boilers and the use of cold feed water—are discussed by a writer in The Practical Engineer. In regard to the important matter of impure feed water, he believes that purification can generally be reached by proper treatment before going to the boiler—that is, by a chemical process and filtration—or, if the first cost of the plant necessary is too great, or space is very limited, by introducing suitable ingredients adapted to affect the impurities found by analysis to be present in the water. By the latter method the lime salts, etc., are rapidly precipitated and rendered easily removable by blowing out in addition to gradually softening existing incrustation. Further, if mineral oil of good quality be used in the cylinders only in such quantities as are really required for lubrication, there is no serious danger to be apprehended from the small proportion reaching the boiler with the feed water, unless there be carbonate of lime present in considerable quantity, in which case oil is not to be permitted to do so by circumstances whatever, for reasons readily apparent.

A Bug That Can Cut Metal.

The Zophorus mirabilis is the only known species of American beetle that has strength enough in its mandibles to cut metal. This curious faculty of zophorus was accidentally discovered by F. W. Bryce, a member of the New York Micro-optical society. A friend had sent Mr. Bryce some specimens of this queer species of bug from the northern states of South America. The microscopist was busily engaged when the insects arrived and simply provided temporary quarters for the creatures in a glass jar having a metal top, in which the porcelain cap was wanting. Within less than 48 hours they had cut holes in the metal sufficient to get their heads through, and would soon have escaped had their operations remained undetected. By careful experiment Mr. Bryce found that the force necessary to do such cutting was equal to 300 grams.—St. Louis Republic.

He Made a Hit With the Landlady.

For some reason or other the landlady had left the dining room.

"I notice," said the man with the V shaped nose, glancing thoughtfully at a vacant chair opposite, "that as a flatterer our absent friend with the yellow whiskers has made a decided hit with Mrs. Skraggs."

"How do you account for it?" inquired the man with the barbed wire beard.

The man with the V shaped nose smiled carelessly.

"He refers to the article of commerce in the milk pitcher as cream."

As the landlady had again entered the room the subject was dropped for the time being.—New York World.

A REIGN OF TERROR PREDICTED.

For a Brief Period Preceding the Millennium the Beast Is to Reign Upon the Earth and Make Things Unpleasant For the Unregenerate.

The end of the world is rapidly approaching, according to two strange evangelists who have gained quite a following in Oakland, Cal. This is the last year of the "unconverted existence" of this earth, next year will see the second advent, and the year 1897 will see the end, say these modern Millerites. One of these terrorists, as the good people of Oakland call the prophetic preachers, is Rev. F. F. Young, and the other is Rev. J. H. Allen, whose followers, called the "Watchers," are waiting for the second coming of the Lord.

REV. F. F. YOUNG.

These two strange missionaries were unknown to each other until they met in Oakland. They are as unlike as it is possible to be. The methods by which they have arrived at their strange theories are entirely different, but they are both preaching the same thing and at about the same time. They differ about a year in the time set, but this is because one figures from the civil year of the present day and the other has adopted the Jewish year as the tree one and figures from that. Mr. Allen figures his results from astronomy and the book of Daniel, while Mr. Young calls to his aid material manifestations and the book of Revelation.

Mr. Young is an undersized, nervous little man, with mild blue eyes and a stubby beard surrounding his face. He has a family of ten children ranging from 3 years old to 16, and he says that he lives by faith alone. Certain it is that Dr. Young receives no salary, for he is pastor of only a little mission that is located in a store that the owners have had some difficulty in renting. There, behind painted glass that is intended to keep out the stares of a curious public, Dr. Young preaches the second coming and tells what hearers he can gather together that we are now living in the time that is spoken of in the two great prophetic and mysterious books of the Old and the New Testaments.

"Before the end of this year," says Dr. Young, "if my figures are correct—and I am preaching their correctness—Christ will come and will take his saints, which means only the Christians who are ready, to heaven with him. Before the end of the year all of the true Christians will have been translated and taken to heaven, Christ will make his appearance in the clouds before the whole world, and those who are now ready will be carried to him alive and in full view of the world.

"From that time begins three years and a half of tribulation, and it will be to save his saints this time of trouble that they will be taken to him alive. This will be the beginning of the end, and for those three and a half years the beast will reign upon the earth. This will be a reign of terror. There will be wars, revolutions, anarchy and such political, social and religious upheavals as have never been known in the history of the world. There will be terrible material evidences of the time. There will be earthquakes, storms and wonderful manifestations of the power that sets the world in the heavens. There will be false rulers and false religious leaders, and the men will go wandering off after false prophets, not knowing where to go or where to turn.

"But this will only be the beginning of the end. After three years and a half of this reign of the beast and the time, times, times and a half of great tribulation then will follow judgment upon the beast. This will be in 1899 or 1900, only four years from now. Then will come five months of wrath upon the beast, and judgment for his sin and his control of the world for all those years, and for his absolute control during the time of great tribulation.

"This will be the end, and at the close of the five months of judgment upon the beast his reign will end for 1,000 years. Christ will come back to this earth as the king and ruler, and for 1,000 years he will be in power. This will be the millennium for which we have all been waiting. This will begin in 1900, and on that date all social and political lines will be obliterated. The world will be one brotherhood, one family, with one language and one ruler, who will be Christ.

"For 1,000 years this will continue. Then will come the material end of the world. The ungodly will be judged and the earth as it now swings in the heavens will be consumed by fire. This will be the total destruction, to be followed by the making of all things new, and then the end of all, which will be eternity with God and the saved."

In the localization of this peculiar doctrine Dr. Young has issued what he calls the "Chart of Chronological Harmony of the Occurrences Recorded in the Book of Revelation of Jesus Christ." This chart is intended as an aid to the study of the book of Revelation, and it aims to show how the events that are mentioned in that book as preceding the end of the world are now actually transpiring.

The Rev. J. H. Allen figures out the end of the world a little differently from the Rev. F. F. Young, but Mr. Allen is a little more definite, and he brings to his aid in his calculations astronomy and mathematics. With a telescope Mr. Allen says that he observes the stars and studies their courses and then he sits down in his home and figures out the results of his observations until he has decided that the end will begin in the spring of next year, and that at that time all of the saints upon earth and those who died in the faith will be resurrected and caught up in the clouds. But Mr. Allen also allows three years and a half until the end comes, and the spring of 1896 will see only the first resurrection and the beginning of a reign of terror for three years and a half.

In view of this resurrection of the dead and translation of the faithful who are alive Mr. Allen has formed the little band of "Watchers." He is the leader, and the band is watching and waiting for the end of time, when they hope to be caught up to heaven alive at the beginning of the end of the world. Mr. Allen has exerted quite an influence, and the band is growing day by day until it now numbers several hundreds, and they are all as devout in their belief as were the Millerites of 50 years ago.

"I am simply telling the story that Henry Miller told to the world 50 years ago, when the Millerite wave swept over the country," says Mr. Allen, "but I am telling the story with proof and with details that poor Henry Miller never had. He had but an inkling of the truth, and he made a great mistake in his calculations. Henry Miller figured out the fulfillment of the prophecies of Daniel and of Revelation, taking as the date from which he began his figuring the year upon which the order went forth to rebuild the temple of Jerusalem the second time. That was where he made his mistake. Had he figured from the time of the completion of the second temple he would have made the date of the second coming 1890."

A BOY'S LIFE IN PRISON.

Pompei de Marco Is Only Fifteen, but He Has Killed a Man.

Pompei de Marco is but 15 years old, with pink cheeks and big, clear brown eyes like a baby's, yet he is a murderer and was recently convicted by a Brooklyn jury of manslaughter in the first degree.

"I am sorry I killed Girono," said Pompei when interviewed in jail. He spoke with a songsong Italian dialect, and his voice was fresh and boyish.

"But Girono was a very bad man," he went on. "He catch me by the coat. He take my money. He say, 'Give me $30.' I give him $30. He say he buy a horse and wagon with the $30, and I be a partner and help him to sell the fruit. I work very hard. I make $5 a week. I am in a cooper shop. I save my money for seven, eight month, and I think, yes, I like to own a wagon and drive it. He's a rich man, and I give him the money I save.

"Then I wait, and I wait, and I wait. I go and ask him to give my money, and he say always, 'Tomorrow, tomorrow, tomorrow.'

"The night I kill him I go with my friends to eat and to get a glass of beer. I ask him for the money. He say, 'I kill you; you bother me,' and he take me by the coat. I shoot him, and he fall down and he is dead. I run to the house of my friend in Brooklyn.

"All the night I cry and cry. I feel very bad. In the morning I go and say to the policeman: 'You take me. I have kill Moreno.'

"Then is my trial. I have plenty witness. The judge ask me how old am I, and I tell him, and I say I didn't mean to kill Moreno, and that is all.

"I am sentenced today. I pray, Madre di Dios; I pray all the night that I do not go to the big prison, the penitentiary. I want go to house correction. There, if I am good boy, I can soon get out, and I will work and work, and I will do no more trouble. I am in a cell. You ever see a cell? No?

"It is very lonesome in my cell all night. I am all alone there.

"When a man steal or fight or get crazy, he is in a cell with other man, but I—I am alone. I kill Moreno."

"Are you afraid in your cell at night?"

The boy looked around hurriedly. He made the sign of the cross.

"Sometimes," he said.

"What do you do there all day?"

"All day? What do I do? I try to think. Will I get out—will I get out? And I remember how good the streets seem, with the cold air, and the sky, and the sometime grass and trees, and I think of the men in my cooper shop and if they think of me, and I try to think of the song, to make me to be happy again, and at night I say my prayer.

"They are good to me here. They put me in a cell where the light comes in from high—very high in the wall, on the other side of the prison, and there is never the sun to see. I cannot like the things when I must eat alone. Do you like it, to eat alone? And the wall—the wall is always so near! When I open my eyes in the morning, it is so black and so hard—so near to my face."

Sliced the Robbers.

Eleven members of a gang of robbers who had been infesting the silk district of Chekiang, China, were captured at a mountain town recently while occupied in bathing in the mountain stream that runs past the town. The townsmen surrounded the bathers, and having bound them set to work to slice their prisoners piece by piece, in revenge for the death of some of their townsmen at the hands of the band last winter. After the horrible deed was accomplished the fragments of the bodies of the wretched robbers were thrown into their own boat, and it was allowed to drift down stream. The timidity of the mandarins, who dared not punish the robbers for fear of the vengeance of the rest of the band, was the reason why the townsmen did not take their prisoners alive and hand them over to the authorities.

Broke the Record on Fits.

An epileptic young woman, whose case is reported in The Lancet, seems to have broken the record for fits. She had 3,205 distinct fits in 21 days, an average of 152 a day, and in one day had 240 of them. She was cured with chloral hydrate and bromide of potassium.

HER WEDDING GOWNS

A DESCRIPTION OF MISS VANDERBILT'S TROUSSEAU.

The Bridal Dress a Product of Parisian and American Skill—The Lingerie of the Most Delicate Fabrics and Entirely of American Make.

The fact that Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt's bridal gown was ordered in New York instead of in Paris is furnishing an agreeable subject for discussion among people of small minds. Among those New York women who think that nothing altogether correct in the way of gowns can come from anywhere but Paris surprise is expressed that the whole trousseau of the future duchess was not imported from the French capital. There are, however, plenty of women of taste and jingo spirit who share Miss Vanderbilt's opinion that the work of an American dressmaker is good enough for any occasion. As a matter of fact, however, the dress Miss Vanderbilt will be married in is, to all intents and purposes, a Paris creation. It was imported by a fashionable New York dressmaker and was in her shop when Mrs. Vanderbilt and her daughter called to see about the latter's trousseau. All that was necessary to be done was to trim the costume and fashion the bridal train or "tail," as the English call it.

The gown was what dressmakers call a model—that is, a sample bridal gown, it being the only one of the kind imported. When the dress had been selected, Mrs. Vanderbilt furnished the lace with which it was to be trimmed. The lace, the design for which was suggested by Mrs. Vanderbilt, was made in Brussels. The idea carried out in its making is a combination of the designs of the point d'Angleterre and point applique lace. The body of the gown is cream satin. The color of the lace matches it. The skirt of the gown is of comfortable walking length. The waist is high necked, with very full sleeves, close fitting below the elbow and reaching over the hand in the shape of a gauntlet.

The lace with which the gown is trimmed is 12 inches deep. In trimming the skirt this lace was uncut, being arranged in four horizontal rows across the front and sides of the skirt, almost concealing the satin. Over the lace on the right side of the skirt falls a spray of orange blossoms.

The front of the waist is, as the dressmakers say, "billowed" with chiffon. Over the chiffon are drapings of the lace, gathered in a high standing collar. Triple revers of lace fall over the sleeves from the shoulder to the elbow, and upon the left shoulder over the lace is a spray of orange blossoms.

The train to the gown is five yards long and is fastened to the shoulders just below the neckband. The satin of the train is plaited in double box plaits and is edged with an embroidery in seed pearls and silver, following the design of bunches of rose leaves tied together with a lover's knot. The bridal veil is of brussels net, to be fastened to the coiffure with a tiara of orange blossoms. The train is of the regulation length prescribed for the gowns worn by the women presented at the English court, and the Duchess of Marlborough will wear her bridal gown when presented to the queen.

The dressmaker has been commissioned to make only two of the bridesmaids' dresses. All of these will be of plain white satin, with sashes of ciel blue silk. The bridesmaids' hats are of royal or dark blue velvet, made something after the Gainsborough pattern, the rims rolling up in front. Each hat will be trimmed with ciel blue ostrich tips, out of which rises a white aigret. Around the bell shaped crown of each hat is a wide band of ciel blue satin ribbon, which terminates in a bow at the back.

The traveling gown has not yet been selected. Four dresses, any one of which will be suitable, have been sent to Miss Vanderbilt, and one of these she will wear away on her honeymoon.

The same preference on the part of Miss Vanderbilt for home bought garments is shown by the fact that the greater part of her trousseau, if not her entire outfit, is being procured in New York.

The other suits, 12 in number and of varying design, are of cambric, the trimmings of six being valenciennes lace and of the other six cluny lace. Each garment is marked with the name "Consuelo" in raised embroidery.

The underpetticoats other than the short cambric varieties are all of fine india silk, lined with a contrasting color of silk and finished with tiny ruffles, and the long silken petticoats are mainly of pompadour silk in different shades of color, trimmed with ruchings and plaitings of silk, but without lace frills of any description.

An absence of lace distinguishes also the long white skirts, the principal trimming of which is hand embroidery scattered in small ovals and leaf patterns over deep muslin ruffles. Where lace is used it merely edges the narrow balayures underneath.

Several dainty peignoirs of pink and white and of pale blue flanned are trimmed only with hand embroidery and satin ribbons.

The only colors favored by Miss Vanderbilt so far as her lingerie is concerned are pale blue and pink.—New York Sun.

Timothy Healy's New Paper.

It is understood that the £50,000 with which Timothy Healy will start a new daily paper in Dublin in opposition to The Freeman's Journal, the organ of the anti-Parnellites, is part of the total of £200,000 which Le and Messrs. Chance and O'Driscoll, ex-members of parliament, have made in the stock market in the past few months by speculation in the South African mining boom.—New York Herald.

Novelties In Millinery.

In millinery chenille is made the feature both in black and in colors, but mixed ornaments with feathers. A very chic hat is in a dead gold beaver, turned up at the back with a couple of black tips en aigrette and a bunch of black roses. Two smaller tips curl toward the front, and in the immediate front of the hat is arranged a large black ribbon bow knotted into a large jeweled brass buckle. Capotes and toques are worn chiefly at theaters and concerts and are made of jet and colored chenille. The trimmings of many of the capotes consist of satin chenix corded with brass, like glistening dewdrops, and black and white aigrets. The fundamentals of the toques are in jet with chenille novelties, sea onions—very luscious, but very original—the hard appearance modified by bunches of curling black feathers on one side and a twist of velvet lined with white satin as a border.

Miss Vanderbilt's Retort.

An amusing story about Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt is told by one of her school friends. It happened several years ago, when Miss Vanderbilt was in short dresses, and the desirability of standing well with prominent people had not yet crossed the minds of her schoolmates.

The dispute started over the monthly report book. Miss Vanderbilt's marks were higher than any of the other children's in the group.

"I don't care," exclaimed one of them, "the teachers favor you 'cause you're rich, but my father says your grandfather used to sell matches. There—didn't he?"

And Miss Vanderbilt, who was possessed of rare dignity, held up her curly head a trifle higher and answered quietly:

"I really don't know. But if he did I'm sure they were good matches."—New York Herald.

England has sent an ultimatum to Venezuela, and as it is substantially the second demand of the kind it may be taken to mean business. This is England's busy month in the ultimatum line. She has helped to bring Turkey up with a short turn, and on the 31st inst. her ultimatum in the Ashanti affair will take effect.—Philadelphia Record.

There is no story of British aggression more characteristic or more illustrative of its disregard of the rights of weaker powers than the manner in which it has pushed its occupation and pretended ownership of Venezuelan territory from one acknowledged boundary to another during the last 60 years.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

It is to be hoped that Venezuela, backed by our government, will demand the arbitration of England's entire claim, and will not allow it to be limited to recent encroachments. If our government does not take this stand, it will admit the right of any European power to dismember or take possession of any of our sister republics in this hemisphere.—Atlanta Constitution.

It is little else than the law of the stronger that John Bull applies when he plants himself on disputed territory, calls for maxim guns to protect himself there, and then declares that he will only put to arbitration the question whether he can go farther.—New York Sun.

TWO DEATHS OCCUR

FROM THE STRANGE CASES OF SICKNESS SOUTH OF TOWN

Mrs. Zachman and Her Son-in-law, Who Suffered Similarly, Die Only a Few Hours Apart—The Cases Indicate Poisoning—Charged to Impure Milk.

Two of the cases of the strange sickness south of the city have resulted fatally. The deaths were not unlooked for, but have caused a great shock to the community, and it is possible that others will follow.

Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, Mrs. Michael Zachman passed quietly away after a siege of violent suffering from the terrible malady with which she was afflicted. At about 10 o'clock that night, her son-in-law, Wesley Fox, passed away, having suffered with the same disease

The afflictions of this family are well known to STAR readers. They became deathly sick from what seemed to be unknown poisoning. The patients were unable to retain anything on their stomachs, and there was every indication that they had been poisoned In the Zachman family four were down with it, but all recovered except Mrs. Zachman and her son-in-law, and the hired man, who is still quite ill and may not recover The illness was violent until a short time before death, when the patients became quiet.

Dr. Shuey, of Prospect, had charge of the cases, but had physicians from Marion and Delaware in consultation, and all decided that their systems were in some manner poisoned. The cases were like that of old-fashioned milk sickness. It is thought that the victims were poisoned from drinking milk. There were two cows that gave milk from which this family used. They were turned in a pasture where they could eat nuts from the red acorn tree. These cows were killed and cut open, and it was found that their stomachs contained a number of these nuts which had become caked, and it is supposed that the sickness was caused by this Others in the neighborhood, whose cows did not feed on acorns, were not taken sick, while all whose cows had access to the red acorns suffered in the same manner.

Mrs Zachman leaves a family and was about 55 years of age. She resided in the section of the county that is known as Bethlehem, south of the city, and was the wife of a prominent farmer Her death is mourned by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Wesley Fox was a son-in-law of Mrs. Zachman, and had been assisting in the care of the sick woman, when he, too, was stricken and his case was serious from the very first. It had been closely watched, but nothing that the physicians could offer was of any avail

Both funerals will occur Monday at 10 a. m., at the Bethlehem Evangelical church. Burial will take place at the Marion cemetery.

JOHN BEBOUT DEAD.

His Death Occurs Friday Night of Typhoid Fever.

John Bebout died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Worline, on Silver street, Friday night at 10:30 o'clock. Mr. Bebout was stricken with typhoid fever some time ago and since has been a great sufferer. At times it was thought he would recover and his friends were hopeful, but he would again grow worse and his case became critical.

Bebout was employed as a helper in the blacksmith department of the Marion Steam Shovel works, and was a young man of christian habits, ever industrious and well liked by his acquaintances and shopmates His death is mourned by all who had even a slight acquaintance with him. He would have been 26 years old in February.

The funeral will occur Sunday morning at 10 o'clock from the State street Baptist church.

CONSIDERABLE BLUNDERING

In Reporting Council Proceedings, of Which a Correction Is Made Below.

The STAR report of council proceedings, as given in Friday's issue, was very much out of harmony with the truth, and some wrong impressions given that really deserve correction.

Mr. W. B. Fisher did not present a petition for a re-adjustment of the paving assessment on his lot on the northeast corner of Prospect and Center nor does Mrs. E. P. Fisher own the lot on the northwest corner of these streets, nor offered a petition relating thereto. The discussion of petitions and reference to the Fisher block corner for illustration confused the reporter.

As a matter of fact, the duplicate valuation of "the lot where the big Fisher block is located" is not $800, but $11,760, which is as high, relatively, as any business property in the city. The lot valued at $800 is a 23 foot strip at the northwest corner of Center and Prospect, which was assessed on a basis of 40 per cent of $160 per front foot, apparently high enough in 1890.

It is but justice to Col. Christian, who made the land appraisement of 1890, to state that his appraisement of Marion real estate was reduced 10 per cent. by the state board of equalization.

The report of the opinion given by Solicitor Cassinger was equally astray He explained to council that an unimproved corner lot, with no opening on the side street, has only one front, whereas a building like the Fisher block, having a side entrance, is subject to assessment for its frontages on both streets.

The claims in both the Fisher cases relate to vacant lots, and there seems to be no difference of opinion as to the law in the case, nor to the justice of the claims

ALL OVER.

When He Was Confronted With Cold Figures, He Backed Out.

It was a revival meeting in one of the colored churches in a town in Louisiana. The preacher called upon one and another to lead in prayer, and Brother Jones had been praying for a couple of minutes when the old man began to clap his hands and raise a gait with his dance. One of the deacons went over to him and cautioned him to be quiet, but he resumed himself for three minutes or four minutes. Then Brother Williams was called upon, and he had scarcely begun when the old man rose up and shouted:

"Bress de Lawd, but I can't hole myself back when I hear Brudder Williams goin' to heb'n in his fat ways!"

He was soon again and sat down at the end of each to an occasional "Amen!" but when Sister Brown began to plead that all sinful white folks might turn from the error of their ways the old man broke loose and had it over. One of the deacons took hold of him by the arm and led him outside and down the street a piece and was about to leave him, when Uncle Reuben asked:

"Boy, what yo' 'Cun fussin wid me fur?"

"Too much noise, uncle," was the reply.

"Dun' I belong to dat church?"

"Yo does."

"Is it 'gainst de rules of de church to git excited an' shout fur de blessed cause of religion?"

"No, sah."

"Does yo' find it anywhar in de Bible dat I can't shout fur de salvashun o' sinners?"

"No, sah."

"Den what yo' dun pull me out yere fur?"

"Kase we's got to draw de line, Uncle Reuben."

"What line?"

"De line on pew rent. Yo' is owin' dis church 'bout $1,000 pew rent, Uncle Reuben, an' de 'sciples say de time for standin' up an' shoutin' looks so poor as dat de deacons 'cided to draw de line, an' yo' an' me de risk of all de white folks bein' burned up with fiah an' brimstun!"

He turned on his heels and entered the meeting house, and after gazing at the ceiling for two or three minutes in silence the old man left the church.—Life.

A STRUGGLE FOR LIFE

YOUNG WOMAN PROTECTS A NEIGHBOR'S CHILDREN FROM A FIEND.

An Ax Wrested From Her Grasp—The Plucky Maiden Was Being Overpowered When Her Mastiff Came to Her Aid. Then She Ran For Her Father's Gun.

While protecting two children at Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., the other day Miss Della Ireland, one of the pretty young ladies of the place, had an exciting encounter with a burly negro As a result she is confined to her home suffering from nervous prostration.

Miss Ireland was alone in her home, on the Huntington road, when she noticed Lizzie and Joan Jarvis, 5 and 6 years old respectively, children of Philo Jarvis, a neighbor, running toward the house.

As she looked she was startled by hearing a deep voice commanding the children to stop running under pain of having their heads cut off A second later a big negro appeared in sight chasing the children, who were screaming for help.

Miss Ireland left her house, and seizing an ax lying near the door ran to meet the children. As she approached them the negro drew near and ordered her to run for her life.

Instead the brave young woman raised the ax in the air, and with all the courage she could muster advanced to the side of the frightened children. The negro grappled with her, and after a fierce struggle wrenched the ax from her hands. It fell to the ground, and the young woman, with rare presence of mind, put both feet on it to keep it from her assailant.

With a fierce oath the negro grabbed Miss Ireland about the waist. Despite her kicking and struggling he threw her to the ground. The young woman's clothes were torn, her skin was cut and her body bruised by the human brute in whose clutches she struggled.

The negro was fast overpowering the young woman, when a big mastiff, a pet of Miss Ireland, appeared on the scene It sprang at the negro's throat and fastened its teeth in his coat collar.

Miss Ireland regained her feet, and taking the almost speechless children by the hand ran with them to her home. Arriving there, she loaded her father's old army musket, and pointing it at the negro ordered him to leave the neighborhood at once.

With an oath and a sullen look he limped away in the direction of Huntington. The dog made several attempts to pursue him, but was restrained by the young woman. She retained her composure until her mother reached home.

She had hardly finished describing her assailant when she became hysterical and had to be placed under the care of a physician.

The negro is described as being about 6 feet in height, built proportionately and lame in the right leg. He was poorly dressed.

Upon hearing of the attempted assault upon Miss Ireland the father of the Jarvis children shouldered his gun and went in search of the negro.—New York World.

MRS. LANGTRY'S NECKLACE.

The Famous Stones Are Being Industriously Searched For.

Since Mrs. Langtry's jewels were stolen the sale of her last photographs taken in New York increased all of a sudden. That was because the precious lost necklace, all of diamonds and turquoises, which she prized so highly and over which she has wailed so bitterly, is being industriously searched for in America. It is a famous ornament, let alone its intrinsic value, for a royal personage helped to collect the splendid stones for its making.

After wearing it a number of years in her Bond street setting, Mrs. Langtry came to see the infinite superiority of the jeweler's art in America, and gave them also to a New York goldsmith to reset the stones in better taste and according to his own designs. So well did he do his work that a great many more precious gems were intrusted to him for rearrangement.

Now, not only does this jeweler make as splendid ornaments for women's adornings have ever been seen, but he also guards in his huge burglar proof safe at times during the year half of the jewels of women in the United States, and of late enough has materially added to his sovereign property of this sort supposed to be irretrievably lost. So in Mrs Langtry's behalf he has undertaken to help restore that all important necklace, and his first step was to buy up an armload of her pictures, which are now in the hands of detectives and the police.—New York Sun.

Torpedo Boats Not Perfect.

During the late English naval maneuvers the Hawk was the only torpedo-boat destroyer which pulled through without a breakdown. All the others had something go wrong with their machinery and had to put into port for repairs. The Hawk came out first in order of precedence, using 9 tons to the 13 of the best in the list.

BATTLE AX PLUG

THE LARGEST PIECE OF TOBACCO EVER SOLD FOR 10 CENTS.

Its Strange Story.

"That's a queer looking watch," observed the man whose collar button showed above his necktie.

"It's a queer watch," replied the man in the mackintosh, replacing it in his pocket. "It has a history."

"Family heirloom perhaps," suggested the man who had his feet on the table. "Last member of the family that had it was your uncle, who had previously let you have a dollar and a half"—

"It never was out of my possession," resumed the man in the mackintosh, with a glance of disdain at the last speaker, "except once, and there wasn't any money borrowed on it that time."

"Pawnbroker took it away from you, looked at it, and handed it back," ventured the man with the slouch hat.

"Traded it to somebody for a yellow dog and the other fellow returned it and told you to keep the dog," hazarded the man with the soiled cuffs.

"This watch," said the man in the mackintosh, "has been my constant companion for many years. One night in 1893 I went to sit up with a sick friend. I was instructed to give him his medicine at intervals of two hours. Once during the night I lay down on a lounge and dozed. I wasn't asleep over two minutes, and yet when I waked up my watch was gone. I looked at the sick man. To all appearance he hadn't moved. There was nothing to indicate that anybody had entered the room, and I was sure nobody could have come in without waking me, anyhow. It was a mystery, but there was nothing I could do or say. I had fallen asleep at my post and had no right to kick. Well, that man got well. Afterward he concluded to move away from town. He sold his household goods at auction. To help him out I bought part of them myself. Among the traps was that lounge. One day I got tired of seeing it about the house. I broke it up for kindling. When I knocked the back of it off this watch fell out. It had slipped out of my pocket the night I lay down on it and took that little nap. That watch, gentlemen, was still going."

"How long had it been lost?" asked the man with the bright green necktie.

"About six months. I told you, gentlemen, the watch had a history. That's the history."

Then somebody exclaimed in a tone of deep disgust that he hated a liar, and the audience slowly filed out.—Chicago Tribune.

School Suggested For Stick Carriers.

One of those things for which no philosopher has been able to find a reasonable explanation is the growing tendency of young men to carry about with them heavy walking sticks with very large heads, round either of knobs or of huge cranks. If these formidable weapons were used merely for the purpose of aiding locomotion no one would complain, but when their owners insist on swinging them like the sail of a windmill in a gale of wind they, as well as their sticks, become a positive nuisance. It is small comfort to a person who has nearly had an eye injured by one of these immature scaffold poles to receive a kind of apology from the youth who does not know how to handle, though in nine cases out of ten he has not the courtesy to make even a reasonable excuse. As a stick now appears to be an indispensable part of a young man's outfit, the school board ought really to start classes for instruction in the art of carrying the article, just as in first class boarding schools young ladies are taught how to handle their fans.—London Telegraph.

Retribution.

"Lillian," he said severely to the new woman, "did you mail that letter I gave you this morning?"

And then she put her hand in the side pocket of her overcoat, started, turned in the face and almost wished that she had never been emancipated.—Washington Star

MARION BAZAR REOPENED.

The Newly Enlarged and Improved Store Appears To Advantage Despite the Gloomy Weather.

W. J. Grills gave an opening to his new Marion Bazar, Friday night, and lacked only good weather to have made it a memorable occasion. It is not surprising that the crowds were not large but it is surprising that so many attended as did, for the rain never let up for one moment, and it required a very strong attraction to bring people from their homes.

The Marion Bazar is hardly recognizable in its new form and dress The room is now 132 feet in depth, 52 feet having been added to the rear, together with basement and second floor. This affords basement storage, gives furnace heat and the removal of stoves from the salesroom, and makes the ground floor one immense, model salesroom.

The arrangement of the store is entirely new. All counters are given a center location, and the side shelves are of easy access to the sales force Along the west side and across the rear is a hanging balcony, materially increasing the display space and surplus stock storage. The rear balcony is devoted to the marking department, cashier's desk, etc., the store having been provided with new cash carrier service.

Friday night the Bazar was in gala attire. The immense stock was handsomely displayed. Blake's potted plants and cut flowers added to the decorations and the lighting was superb. An orchestra was present to discourse sweet music, and the sales force was looking especially bright and attentive Mr. C. C. Plank, who presides over Grosscup & Plank's coal and wood office, added his graciousness to the occasion.

The opening continued today and it is expected to prolong it to extend over next Monday night.

We would again call attention to the two lectures to be given by Dr. J. E Lanceley, of Toronto, Can, at the Epworth church on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and urge everybody to go and hear him one night, at least.

By his magnetic inspiration truth becomes as radiant and golden as a sunbeam slanting through a summer shower.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

On November 20th Dr. Crane will remove into the room over Denison & Company's drug store.

There is much rejoicing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis, on Jefferson street, over the arrival of a bright boy at their home Friday.

Six tramps were lodged last night, but they were not made to split wood. All of the equipments for the wood splitting have not been arranged at the city hall.

Thirteen of the members of Marion Commandery, Knights Templar, were at Galion, Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of Robert Laird, who dropped dead in the hall of the G. A R.

The Hilarity club entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Masterson, of Oliney avenue, Friday night. A very delightful time was enjoyed and the evening was spent in dancing. Several guests from out of town were present

Local sports are talking of making arrangements to bring about a number of glove contests in this city during the winter. The lovers of "physical culture exhibitions" think they will be able to bring about some good entertainment.

An equal division is to be made in the terms of Marion schools. The vacations will always occur at the same time, and the examinations will also be set for regular dates. It will not matter if they come before or after the vacations.

The purchases of cattle in Marion county are said to be quite heavy. George Roberts has purchased several large bunches. The abundance of fodder and cheapness of corn promises to make cattle feeding very profitable this winter.

Sam Hinamon, an employe of the Huber works, is confined to his home on Bain avenue as the result of an accident he met with Thursday. He was pouring molten iron when a portion of it was spilled over his left foot, burning it quite severely.

The Marion Manufacturing company has received a very handsome medal from the Toledo Tri-State fair association, indicating the highest award for engine and thresher, exhibited at the fair last September. The medal will go in the collection of such prizes in possession of the company.

The case of Christopher Barnthouse, of Morral, against J. P. Miller, of this city, was decided in the courts of Wyandot county this week. Barnthouse received a verdict of $76. He sued to recover $75 for labor. A. E. Walkins and L. W. Myers were the attorneys for Barnthouse, and J. H. Bartram for Miller.

Much petty thieving is being done about the business houses in this city. Friday evening J. B. Layton had a fine granite coffee pot stolen from his store, and several times recently he has missed articles from his place of business. Merchants should look out for this class of thieves and endeavor to set a few examples.

An expensive cave-in occurred on the Columbia street ditch trench this forenoon as the result of the rain. The sides of the trench on east Church street, where it is fifteen feet deep, gave way, entailing considerable damage. The progress of work will be retarded greatly by the mishap, as it is estimated that it will keep the entire force of workmen at least two days to put the ditch in the shape it was before the accident.

DRAMATIC DEATHBED MARRIAGE.

Performed by Henry Ward Beecher In the Presence of Many Well Known Men. McFarland, the Murderer, Acquitted by the Jury—A Sensation of 1866.

[Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.]

In November, 1866, Daniel McFarland was an assistant assessor in the city of New York. He was an Irishman by birth and of humble parentage but had succeeded in the face of difficulties in being admitted to the Massachusetts bar. In his thirty-eighth year he married Abby Sage, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of a respectable but not affluent New England family.

McFarland did not carry out the promise of his early years, for we find him in middle life warped, dissipated, idle and ready to turn his hand to anything that has profession for a living. About 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Nov. 25, 1866, McFarland entered the business office of the New York Tribune, at the corner of Nassau and Spruce streets. Mr. George M. King, a clerk, was in charge of the office at the time, and knowing McFarland by sight he did not think it strange to see him taking a chair behind the counter, where he pretended to write, as King thought, an advertisement.

McFarland had been seated about ten minutes when Albert D. Richardson, a well known correspondent of The Tribune, came into the office from Spruce street and asked King if there were any letters for him. While King was examining the letter box McFarland sprang to his feet, and drawing a pistol from his breast pocket shouted, "D—n you, now I've got you!" Richardson was so startled by the act that he could not avoid the danger before the man at the other side of the counter began firing. After the third shot McFarland leaped across the counter, ran unobstructed through the Nassau street door and disappeared.

Mr. Richardson, who was a tall, powerful man in the prime of life, told King that he did not think he was badly hurt. He made his way up four flights of stairs to the editorial rooms, where he fell fainting on a sofa.

Dr. Swain of the Astor House was sent for. He examined the bullet hole in Richardson's breast without being able to locate the bullet and then sadly shook his head.

Mr. Richardson was told of his critical condition, and at the doctor's suggestion he was taken to the Astor House.

After leaving The Tribune office McFarland went to the Westmoreland hotel, where he had never been before, and secured room No. 31, which he paid for in advance. Here he was found by the officers and charged with the murder of Albert D. Richardson. He was much agitated and at first denied the crime, but afterward said: "Yes, now I recall. It must have been me." He was at once taken to the Astor House and brought into Richardson's presence, who recognized him as the man who did the shooting.

McFarland was locked up in the Tombs, and Richardson made preparations for the death which he was now assured was inevitable.

At that time Albert D. Richardson was one of the best known newspaper men in the country. He was 33 years of age, handsome and well educated. Although not regularly in the service, he displayed as a correspondent during the war a courage quite as marked as was his ability as a writer. Richardson was on one of the vessels of Grant's fleet, which was sunk in trying to pass the batteries at Vicksburg. He and a fellow correspondent, Junius Henri Browne, were sent on from Vicksburg to Libby prison. From Libby the correspondent were sent to the prison at Salisbury, N. C. After great suffering for more than a year at this point Richardson and Browne succeeded in making their escape, a thrilling narrative of which was afterward written by the former.

Richardson at this time was a widower and a man of the most correct habits. He was the friend of Beecher, Greeley and other prominent men. A few years before his assassination he met Miss Abby Sage McFarland, who had grown to be a woman of marked ability and refinement. The habits of her husband compelled her to leave him, and she was now making a living with her pen in addition to playing minor parts in a stock company that was then being given in Niblo's theater several times by specially engaged from Boston for the occasion. Judge Davis, one of the ablest lawyers of the New York bar, was retained as private counsel by the commonwealth.

Among the important witnesses were Horace Greeley, Alonzo J. Cummings, Lucius Gilbert Wheeler, Isabella B. Carpenter, the famous artist Sam Colesworthy, members of The Tribune, and Oliver Johnson. The case began on the 15th of January, 1867, and on the 21st McFarland testified in his own behalf. During the trial much light was thrown on the inside life of Fourierism, the doctrine of the Free Love society and the value of labor reformers.

The trial lasted three days, and the whole country was divided and excited over the case, and bets were freely made as to what the verdict would be.

The jury was out 1 hour and 57 minutes, during which time the lawyers on both sides and the packed audience were in a state of nervous excitement. At length an officer shouted out, "This way for the jury."

The 12 men, looking as nervous and as much exhausted as the lawyers, filed in and took their places.

"Gentlemen of the jury, please answer to your names," called out the clerk.

Each answered, "Here."

"Have you agreed upon a verdict?"

"We have," stammered the foreman.

"How say you, gentlemen of the jury? Do you find the prisoner at the bar guilty or not guilty?"

A few seconds of intense and painful silence, then the foreman answered:

"Not guilty!"

A great shout went up from the people and was re-echoed in the corridors and streets, when the reason for it became known.

Daniel McFarland had been saved by the ability of his counsel.

Mrs. Abby Sage-Richardson became prominent in the lecture field after this, and Daniel McFarland, with his habits unchanged, dropped out of sight and died in misery a death some years afterward.

MISS FLAGLER'S PREDICAMENT.

Indicted by a Washington Jury—The Unfortunate Result of a Hasty Act.

The indictment of Miss Elizabeth M. Flagler for manslaughter for shooting and killing Ernest Green, a young colored boy who on Aug. 2 attempted to pick a pear from a tree in front of her father's house, is the latest development in a tragedy which has aroused a great deal of interest not only in Washington, where it occurred, but throughout the entire country.

Miss Flagler is the daughter of General D. W. Flagler, chief of the ordnance bureau of the war department. Her present whereabouts are unknown to all save her family and most intimate friends, but it is understood that she is with friends in Baltimore where she has been under a course of treatment for nervous prostration which the tragedy caused. Miss Flagler is under $10,000 bail.

The feeling of the public here is that the action of the grand jury was just, but it is coupled with expressions of sympathy for the young woman, who is said to be really tender hearted. When the terrible result of her rashness dawned upon Miss Flagler and the boy whom she had shot was brought into her house for treatment, she was the first to run to his assistance, rubbing his hands and applying her handkerchief to stop the bleeding of the wound. When the doctor told her that the boy was dead Miss Flagler refused to believe the truth and continued to her efforts to restore circulation. Miss Flagler was born and reared at Rock Island, Ill., where for many years her father was stationed. She is tall, dignified and graceful, some years ago while living at Watervliet, Mass., she was seized with pneumonia, from the effect of which she never fully recovered, leaving her somewhat of an invalid. She has refined and pleasant features and soft brown eyes. She has a sweet voice which becomes almost angelic when she sings. She is about 30 years old and is said to be very handsome.

Miss Flagler's trial will probably take place in December.

NYE AT THE CIRCUS.

HE STAYS TO THE CONCERT, BUT DOES NOT ENJOY HIMSELF.

Letter From an Anxious Correspondent Who Has an Intense Longing For a Certain Article That He Needs Badly—The Race Question In South Carolina.

(Copyright, 1895, by Edgar W. Nye.)

Very few can have any idea of the suffering in South Carolina, especially among the poor, since the Tillman state law went into effect. Living as I have all summer on the line between North and South Carolina, and where I could see the governors when they had returned each other's calls, I could readily understand that times were getting pretty scarce, but the following letter, picked up by a friend, who has kindly sent it to me, shows how the plain people are suffering.

AT THE CIRCUS.

It is written to a friend who is expected to go to the state dispensary and get the goods, so that when he comes out on Sunday intense unhappiness and mental fog may get a setback:

Cross Keys S. C. Sept 5

Mr Jones

Dear Sir—I Will Write to You to Night to let You know that I am well & truly hoping When this reach you it Will find in Joying your Self

I will write this letter to You to Tell You to Be Sure & to Bring that Bottle of Whiskey that up By Sunday & Bring it with You to Meboth chapper Be Sure I have got Some one to Say that they Will Deliver it to that old fellow & he will Do what he Say that he will do You must come with out Fail to Meboth chapper And Bring that Bottle of Whiskey With You and Above all Dont You farget to Bring that with You For me that there You Send You Was going to have for me By Sunday You must not Fail to have it Ready for me By Sunday & Bring it With You to Meboth Chapter Because me And Lelie Will go to Meboth Chapper Sunday You come and Bring that far Me And that Bottle of Whiskey come Without ful I am Yours

The letter in its spelling and composure favors the negro style of writing, and some fear is expressed here that the colored brother may get to using liquor to excess. In that case the white people may also get to drinking.

The race question is creating a great deal of excitement, too, in South Carolina, and the privileges of the white man are being daily curtailed. It will hereafter be a felony for a white man to marry a colored person. This is a result of the colored vote, which greatly outnumbers the white vote in South Carolina.

Some think that the white vote has been tampered with for several years in the state. It is said also that the new movement to make intelligence a test of the voters' right of suffrage will disfranchise the white agricultural vote. Many say they will not submit.

A white man who fought for South Carolina, but who still makes the sign of the cross instead of writing his name, told me on Saturday at the circus that in "61 it was a rich man's war and a poor man's fight; but, by the great big jumpin Jehosephats, when they jerk my vote away becuz I don't live in Charleston and read Homer at sight, I will brush up my military education, and the blue blood of the self constituted aristocracy will run down the same gully with the red blood of the sand walloper. It has been thought in past years that Charleston giveth and Charleston taketh away, but that don't apply to my vote, and I think I am voicing the sentiments of the ignorant classes, by the great horn spoons, which can outvote the other fellers 5 to 1."

He seemed quite excited, and when I left him he was trying to read the word hippopotamus by looking hard at the large blue letters and then down the large red throats of two of these moral beasts as they appeared on a billboard.

Finally in a burst of ungovernable passion he hurled an epithet and a warm quid of long green tobacco at the livid larynx of the papa hippopotamus, and with a muttered curse buried his features in a watermelon for quite awhile.

The circus is indeed a great educator. Shortsighted people say that it takes thousands of dollars out of the country. They say the same about my course of scientific lectures, entitled "Farming Exposed," but what of that?

The circus, to those who love its glad thrill and mirth and music and sawdust and animal magnetism, is a good thing. It gives hope for months before it comes to those who had no hope, and it gives joyful reminiscences for years afterward.

To the poor, who perhaps unwisely sold their meager clothes and went in their shirt sleeves, it was yet worth all it cost. To the poor farmer and his wife it was a trip to the Holy Land and a bracing romp up to the very threshold of the foolkiller's home on Mont Blanc (pronounced Mong Blong).

Nine thousand people went to see this circus, and I went to see them. Some of them had been on the road three days.

What would you think of a family traveling a week and sleeping out of doors every night the whole seven days, with no money but the silver necessary to let in two grown people and 11 children, all under 10 years, possibly the youngest having joined the party on the way, all eager and happy and expectant and all cheerily living on acorns and sassafras tea?

What would you say to such a case as that, I repeat, and all to see a circus?

I do not know of any such case, but if I did, what, I ask, would you say to it?

There were mothers there, however, who stood six hours in one spot, holding a newborn child at such an angle that he could get a good view of the sun, and when the clown came along, driving a young sacred heifer in a sulky, followed him all through the rest of the parade and to the very door of his dressing room. Whole families came from Transylvania—we lay everything that is at all peculiar here to Transylvania county, such as paupers, etc., and the people of Transylvania county attribute all of their vagrancy and people with grotesque morals to Buncombe county—but whole families, planning to come from Transylvania county, rode in on three wheels and a red gum pole under the off axle, leading a milk cow, and red with dust, looking like the children of Israel after 40 years in the desert. Home was wherever they happened to tie the cow.

One of these men held my horse for me while I went to talk with Mr. Sowlow, the clown, and get some new matter from him to use in England, and when I got back and gave him the 70 cents to buy 5 cents' worth of peanuts each for his children you should have seen him. You would hardly guess what he did.

I felt the keenest delight in giving it, and surely it is worth the expense to gladden a neglected heart and bring even a swiftly vanishing smile to the brow of toil.

He stooped down gently and scratched his ankle and then went away.

The reason he went away was that a band with a five ton chariot and drawn by 16 pure white horses passed over the spot just at that moment.

The only thing that can produce an evidence of emotion on one of these people is the Black Hornet of the Blue Ridge or Little Typhoid Touch Me Not of Tennessee. He seems to appeal to such a man's nature if he can find it quicker than anything else of which we know.

I saw one of them nine years ago, and he seemed to be under the influence of liquor. At least he was more chatty than he had ever been before with me. He asked if I had noticed anything peculiar about his conduct. I said yes. I had noticed that he seemed to spit a little higher than usual and appeared to show more animal spirits than I had ever noticed before.

Afterward I learned that he had drunk up all the alcohol in a 16 ounce vial at Dr. Battle's office containing a tarantula. He spat out the tarantula because he "had just er," he said.

He stopped a little higher, and that was all the effect it had. When a man of that character removes his feet entirely from the ground while walking, you may generally take it for granted that he is under the influence of stimulants.

The concert after the circus was quite poor. I was bitterly disappointed.

While the circus was going on I was greatly annoyed by 30 or 32 young gents who walked on my person to and fro selling these concert tickets. I asked one of them if he would mind telling me whether it was going to be good. He took me away where no one could hear us but the elephant and said: "Yes, you ask me to be frank with you, and I can see that you are a man of keen sensibilities. You have traveled a great deal and you wish to know the worst?"

"Yes," I said. "I can bear it."

"Well," said he, "then I will tell you. It is good. It is first class."

When I got back, a large man, armed with a revolver and with his brain on fire from drink, had my seat.

The concert was mediocre in the extreme.

Some of the female dancers and singers were of a coarse and wicked nature. They were bold and forward, and the sweet innocence of girlhood had gone.

That was not the worst of it.

They were men!

I tried to overtake the young fiend in human form who sold me the tickets,

A MAN WITH A REVOLVER.

but he crawled into a cage of performing lions, where he was comparatively safe, so far as I was concerned.

But I gave him a piece of my mind.

I wish the papers would show up these things. If I had the command of language that some has, oh, how I would stir this matter up!

It is humiliating for me to say in public that I was defrauded in this way, but I do it for the general good.

I dress in the height of fashion, and yet I am often mistaken for a peasant.

Can it be that some of our ancestry married beneath them? I'll bet a $ that's it.

SICKNESS WITHOUT SYMPTOMS.

A Disease That Doesn't Make You Feel Sick Till Too Late.

Smptoms Are Nature's Danger Signals. Bright's Disease Is Dangerous Because Its Danger Signals Are so Weak—Kidney Troubles and How To Cure Them.

Bright's disease has no symptoms.

That is, of course, it has some symptoms, but they are so common that everybody suffers from them more or less.

And yet we have not all got Bright's disease.

We nearly all have headaches. Headaches are a sign of Bright's disease. Nervousness, thirst, hot skin, loss of flesh; these are other symptoms.

Who would suppose he was dangerously sick when he simply had these symptoms?

Yet Bright's disease often has hardly any others, outwardly, and is still one of the diseases most dreaded by physicians.

If it is allowed to run on too long it is incurable. Even in the beginning, ordinary drugs are often unable to help it.

But Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills will cure all cases of Bright's disease if taken before the kidneys are so worn out that renewing them is impossible.

Most sicknesses are caused by the kidneys because it is the kidneys which are supposed to keep the blood pure.

When the blood is impure it causes just the same symptoms as mentioned above for Bright's disease.

If, when we are sick, we would take Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills, we would cure Bright's disease if we had it, and in any case we would purify our blood and relieve the symptoms which made us feel sick.

Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are made from the roots and stalks of the asparagus plant under a special process.

They have a toning and healing effect upon the kidneys. They repair the effects of overwork, worry, excesses, etc. They strengthen and nourish the organs and give them new vitality.

Kidney troubles caused by bruises or wounds can be cured with Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

The kidneys filter our blood. They keep it pure and free from poisonous matter.

When our blood is impure we suffer from Bright's disease, diabetes and other kidney diseases, and from rheumatism, gout, anaemia and other blood diseases.

The cure would be to take Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills.

By curing the kidneys we would make them purify the blood, and thus would cure all kidney and blood diseases from which we might be suffering.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are for sale by all druggists, or will be sent to any address by mail, prepaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box.

Valuable pamphlet on the subject mailed free on request. Hobb's Medicine Co., Chicago or San Francisco.

GAVE IT UP.

The Chairman Made a Brave Effort, but It Was In Vain.

"Now, ladies," said the chairman of the convention, rapping with her gavel, "remember, please, that we must have order. I must ask you to refrain from whispering during the progress of the meeting."

Still the low, sibilant sound from the group of pretty heads that had got together in one corner of the hall continued.

The chairman looked annoyed and tapped with her gavel more severely.

The group of pretty heads broke up and the whispering ceased in that quarter, but over on the opposite side of the hall a delegate was seen to lean toward her neighbor and the disagreeable hissing was resumed.

"Is it possible," said the chairman, "that I must repeat my request? You will refrain from whispering, please."

The offending head nodded approvingly, but the whispering did not stop.

"If necessary," said the chairman, with a touch of anger, "I shall become personal in my requests. Will the delegate from Boston kindly postpone her private conversation with her neighbor till the meeting is over?"

The delegate from Boston straightened up in her seat and flushed hotly.

"Is it possible," she exclaimed, "that you meant me?"

"Certainly," said the chairman. "There was no one else whispering at the moment, I believe."

"But," said the delegate from Boston, "I was only saying to my neighbor what a splendid chairman you made to stop the whispering of those ladies from Ohio over there. I don't see how you can object to me saying that."

"We will have no whispering on any subject," said the chairman sternly.

And, with that, at least a dozen heads in different parts of the hall bobbed over toward their neighbors' desk, and the sibilation grew into a prolonged hiss, from which could plainly be distinguished such expressions as "Serves her right!" "The idea!" "What a splendid chairman!" etc.

A look of despair came over the chairman's face, and she sat down, with a mute signal to the secretary to go on with the reading of the minutes and let the whisperers have their way.—Buffalo Express.

PEACEMAKER OF THE PIUTES.

Captain Sides Preaches Temperance and Keeps the Indians Peaceable.

"The Peacemaker of the Piutes" is what Indians and whites alike call Captain Johnson Sides, a queer Nevada character, who is one of the oldest Indian interpreters and peacemakers in the service of the United States. For a score of years he has been the chief interpreter of the Piutes, and on many occasions his timely advice to the Indians has prevented the shedding of blood. No one knows better than he that mixing Indians and firewater has much the same effect as mixing fire and gunpowder. Consequently he loses no opportunity of preaching temperance to the Piutes. He warns them against drinking whisky, against beating their wives and against having Indian medicine men when they are sick. "If you have Indian doctors," he says sententiously, "your neck is stretched." He does not pretend to have any decided opinions as to merits or demerits of the allopathic and homeopathic schools of medicine, but he does know that the Indian medicine man is a quack of the thirty-third degree.

JOHNSON SIDES.

Captain Sides is a Piute himself, and succeeded to his present office when his brother, Captain Charley Sides, who had been peacemaker for many years in Nevada and California, went to the happy hunting grounds. During his 20 years of service Captain Johnson Sides has probably done more to prevent trouble and to civilize the Indians than any other man in the two states. Several years ago the Piutes at Obisco Creek absorbed considerable firewater, donned warpaint and feathers and began terrorizing the country.

Sides had a short powwow with the unruly red men. He told them to scrape off their war paint, throw away their whisky bottles, return to their reservation and obey the laws of the whites. His eloquence had a good affect, and the Indians quickly quieted down.

Sides believes that the Indians' only hope is to accept civilization, learn all they can and leave firewater alone. Last winter he placed 62 pupils in the Indian school at Fort Independent, and he aids the Piutes in getting work and in many other ways.

A BOY PRINCE IN TERROR.

Fanning Island Royalty Fairly Stunned by Civilization In San Francisco.

New York has been making a great deal of fuss over a duke of late, and San Francisco is now entertaining a king and a real, live prince, King Grieg and Prince George Grieg of Fanning island. The king has left his island home in order to place the prince in a San Francisco school. There are four more children, and in the fullness of time they also will be given the advantages of a good California education, if the king succeeds in getting his salary regularly when the whistles blow Saturday nights.

Prince George is part American and part native islander. His grandfather and father both married handsome native women and George has very dark hair and a dark complexion. He has white teeth, and looks more like a Spaniard than anything else. Until his arrival at San Francisco his entire life had been passed among the natives of the island, and what he did not know about the English language and American institutions would fill all the books in a large library.

Civilization was a great shock to him when he first reached San Francisco.

PRINCE GEORGE OF FANNING ISLAND.

The dense smoke hovering over the city as the steamer approached reminded him of south sea volcanoes, the hills covered with houses made him rub his astonished eyes and wonder if the vision were not a dream, and the roar and rush of city life dazed him. The cable cars moving swiftly along the streets without any visible means of propulsion were terrible mysteries, the deadly trolley quite naturally excited his alarm, and the screeching, puffing locomotives—the first he had ever seen—fairly threw him into a princely panic.

King Grieg inherited from his father his domain in the Pacific south of the Hawaiian Islands, and a number of years ago John Bull, with his usual kindness, took the island in out of the wet, metaphorically speaking.

Even THE Weather

DOES not materially affect our business. The bargains, the store service, the room, the light and the ever interesting low prices are magnets sufficient to keep this store crowded on first, second and third floors.

THE PROTECTION POLICY APPLIED TO A GREAT MARION BUSINESS BOILED DOWN.

This is it—to create the greatest values for the least money. It's easy to sell at the average price. We're doing a good deal better than selling $1 underwear for $1.00—we're selling what has been known as $1 and $1.25 for many a day for 50c and 75c. You'll be told it can't be. All we say, there are hosts of folks who have had them, and it's a common occurrence to sell dozens a day.

THE BEST SPEECH-MAKERS AND ADVERTISEMENTS WE HAVE TODAY-- THE SATISFIED WEARERS OF OUR WRAPS.

Hundreds of Jackets are on our second floor, not a carried over wrap among them, for last year's wraps we will have to take you up to the third floor, where $20.00 Jackets in cloth or plush sell at $5.00. They are just as warm, well made and comfortable, but this year's style is lacking. Hundreds of fine garments are on this second floor—many bargains, among so rare, that if we told it right, there would be no way supplying the trade.

Fur Beaver Capes $37.50 up.

27 Beaver Cloth Capes, stitched with satin, at $7.50, came today. You who have been waiting for them should make haste to come. Remember this cape is $12.50 at other places.

THE ROOF LEAKED

THE Y. M. C. A. BUILDING THREATENED WITH SERIOUS DAMAGE.

The Big Auditorium Was Nearly Flooded Friday Night, and an All-Night Force Worked Diligently To Save the Interior from Serious Damage.

It was with vigorous efforts that the entire Y. M. C. A. was prevented from being flooded during the hours of the heavy rains, and all night Friday and this forenoon the janitor and others were at work getting the water out of the building. The center of the roof has partially sunken and through the tin roof many small holes have been caused by rust.

These allowed the water to run through and it soaked through the plastering down into the auditorium and that was nearly flooded when it began to drip down into the office of the lobby. Then work was commenced to prevent any great damage. The furniture of the auditorium was covered up where the water fell, large tubs were placed to catch the water as it fell, while the janitor, Physical Director Whyte and Secretary Gamble, with a couple of helpers with mops, kept the floor as dry as possible and the water was thrown out almost as soon as it came through.

Messrs. Whyte and Gamble remained up all night fighting the flood and did good work. The rains were heavy during the night and it took the united efforts of four men to keep the water out, and then they only partially succeeded. This morning they were relieved by Mr. Moister, the janitor, and two boys, who worked hard to stop the water from flooding the building. It was feared that the plastering would fall and do serious injury to the building, but it stood solid, and the damage done was not great.

An attempt was made Friday afternoon to repair the damaged roof, but it had to be given up as the down-pouring rain prevented anything of that kind being done.

HERE'S ANOTHER.

The Imperial Club Is the Last Organized in Marion So Far as Known.

The latest addition to Marion's long list of social clubs was organized this week with an enrollment consisting of eighteen of Marion's respected young men. The Imperial is the name selected for the new organization, which is now preparing quarters over the Manhattan store nicely furnished, and the members expect before long to have one of the most comfortable club rooms in the city.

Following are the names of the members enrolled: Edwin Andrews, Henry Ruhl, Herman Blank, Will Creasap, D. G. Ries, Edwin Abel, Herbert Richards, Darius Washburn, Harley Irey, Galen Carter, H. D. Irwin, Lee Swick, Frank Glick, Albert Thibout, John Schweinfurth, Milton Earnest, Lewis Cull and E. Moore.

The organization elected Henry Ruhl president, Harley Irey secretary and Milton Earnest treasurer.

Talks About the Exposition.

[Columbus Dispatch, Friday.]

Mrs. I. B. Carlisle, chairman of the Ohio Commission to the Woman's Board of the Atlanta Exposition, arrived in Columbus today after a five weeks' visit to the exposition. Mrs. Carlisle is a resident of Marion, Ohio, though she formerly lived in Columbus for many years and has a large acquaintance in this city. She says that is is an unfortunate fact that the exposition has not been a financial success and the board of managers recognize that they have a white elephant on their hands. It has not paid one day's expenses until last week and it is almost certain that there will be a deficit to be met before the close. Mrs. Carlisle is a keen observer and gave The Dispatch man some very interesting ideas of the exposition, its visitors and various features. "Cleveland met with no enthusiastic reception in Atlanta," said Mrs. Carlisle, "on the day that was set apart for his reception, and I was very much surprised at the coolness exhibited by the Georgians in the matter of the entertainment of the president. The fact is that Governor McKinley is infinitely more popular in Georgia and all over the South that I have seen, than is Cleveland. I have heard a number of Atlantans contrast the two men and their careers and records with great disparagement to the present white house incumbent. * * * Ohio is not represented as it should be in Atlanta. I do not refer to the personality of the representatives of the state, but to the exhibits, or rather lack of them, from the Buckeye state. The really one striking Ohio feature is the Cincinnati room, which owes its existence to the liberality and energy of Mrs. Moerlein."

An Election Echo.

[The Dollar Democrat.]

Our friend Harding deserves commendation for his display of newspaper enterprise in issuing early Wednesday morning an extra edition of the STAR, in which the most complete local election returns are given. Harding's enterprise in running the STAR might well be emulated by his daily opponent, if, indeed, there be sufficient grey matter about it to retain the leaven of emulation. Since this opponent will now be relieved from editing sheriff's sales it will have sufficient opportunity to exercise whatever talents it may possess in changing the sheet from a patent medicine advertisement to a newspaper.

Accident at Owen.

The 8-year-old daughter of Ed Solomon, residing at Owen, met with a very severe accident yesterday. She fell off a fence, which resulted in the fracture of her right collar bone. Dr. J. A. McMurray was summoned from this city to render the unfortunate child surgical attention. Her early recovery is expected.

ALIVE AND WELL

AFTER A DANGEROUS EXPERIENCE

One of the Multitude of People who Have Been Speedily and Permanently Cured by Munyon's Remedies Tells His Story.

Mr. Charles W. Godfrey, of Merchantville, N. J., says: "I was unable to work for even half a day for a long time because of kidney trouble. What I have suffered during that time no one but myself knows. Living was a prolonged torment, and became more unendurable every day. I tried every remedy that was suggested, and I sought the best medical advice, and could not obtain any benefit. The physicians said I had Bright's Disease, and my case was pronounced helpless. Finally, in despair, I went to Professor Munyon, Philadelphia, and began treatment under the eminent specialist there. After taking MUNYON'S KIDNEY CURE a short time I began to improve, and am now thoroughly cured of my trouble. I can perform my work properly without fatigue. I shall always remember Munyon with gratitude."

Munyon's Homoeopathic Home Remedy Company, of Philadelphia, puts up specifics for nearly every disease. So prompt and efficient are their curative properties that any person may be cured without the expense of a doctor bill. The remedies are mostly 25 cents a bottle, and may be had from any druggist. If you wish advice write to Professor Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, and he will advise you by letter regarding your ailment free of charge.
